Bullet and Botany.
A correspondent tells the London News that being at Palling, in Norfolk, he asked permission of a local marsh owner to walk over his meadow. "What for?" he wanted to know. "Oh, to do a little botanizing," was the reply. There was a pause while the landowner scratched his head. Then, slowly and suspiciously, "Not with a gun?"

like illness, it is often necessary quickly to raise the temperature of a room. For instance, in those hours between midnight and dawn, when the day temperature has been allowed to drop, if you are called upon to get up, the room is chilly and cold. It takes a long time to start up a furnace or fire and raise the temperature by ordinary means.

OIL HEATER
Absolutely smokeless and odorless

It quickly gives heat, and with one filling of the font burns steadily for nine hours, without smoke or smell. Has automatic-locking flame spreader which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be cleaned in an instant. It has a cool handle and a damper top.

An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. It has a filler-cap which does not need to be screwed down; it is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for reworking.

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in Japan or nickel. It is strong, durable and well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Law—What For?

Mr. Editor: A note in today's paper says that many of the chairmen of the caucuses have not filed their nomination papers yet with the secretary of state and that they should send them in at once. What right has the secretary of state to disregard the law and admit the papers or certificates of the delinquents after the legal time for filing has elapsed? It is the third day now after the legal limit and the law should be enforced, no matter where it hits. The law is plain and gives the secretary of state no discretion in admitting certificates, delivered after the legal limitation. The best way to make a law a dead letter is to follow the plan of the secretary of state, and overlook or stretch it at convenience. The secretary of state has not too much time to prepare the ballots as it is. The law says "the nomination certificate shall be delivered to the secretary of the state by the chairman or secretary of the convention or organization not less than eighteen days prior to the time fixed by law for holding the election in which the candidates nominated at such convention are to be voted for." This makes the legal limit October 21 and all nomination certificates accepted after that date are illegal and void. The socialist party strained every nerve to comply literally with the law and expected that certificates filed too late would be thrown out. The law should be enforced without favoritism or discrimination.

One of David B. Hill's Last Letters.
What is believed to be one of the last words received in this state from the late David B. Hill of New York is the following letter to former Congressman Joseph H. O'Neill of Boston, September 1, 1910.

My Dear Mr. O'Neill—I find upon your letter of August 3 last, which arrived during my vacation, in answer to your inquiries I can only reiterate that I am out of active politics and cannot size up the political situation in a former way. Of course, I want the democracy to succeed. I can only say that things look rather favorable in this state. Thousands of republicans want us to win. The conduct of the republicans in power has been such that we ought to win "hands down." But I never like to prognosticate in regard to political events. I can simply say that it looks pretty well at the present time. With best regards, I remain very truly yours,

DAVID B. HILL.
Ex-Gov. Hill was a member of congress the same time with Mr. O'Neill, and they were such good friends that the acquaintance has been kept up ever since—Springfield Republican.

The Difference.
"What is the difference between an insurgent and a democrat?" Champ Clark was asked, and Champ quickly and accurately replied: "An insurgent goes part of the way and a democrat goes the whole hog."

Funeral of David Bennett Hill

Historic Edifice of St. Peter's Church, Albany, Crowded to the Doors—No Eulogy, Only the Impressive Burial Service of the Episcopal Church.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 24.—The funeral of David Bennett Hill took place at 3 o'clock this afternoon in St. Peter's church. There was no eulogy—only the impressive burial service of the Episcopal church, conducted by the Rev. W. W. Batterham, the rector. The choir sang "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Now the Laborer's Task is O'er," concluding with the recessional hymn "Peace, Perfect Peace," as the casket was borne from the church.

The historic edifice was crowded to the doors. Men were there who had stood shoulder to shoulder with the dead statesman throughout many a hard fought campaign, as well as men who had opposed him bitterly throughout the various political activities of which he was so large a figure. But all were there today to do him reverence.

The little group of mourners who had never engaged in the liquor business. There was formerly a club-room in the place he proposed to occupy, but he had no connection with it. No remonstrance.

Antonio Castagna, age twenty-one, who is to be made a voter next Friday, is the applicant for a license at 83 Liberty street, Pawcatuck, so he testified. He had never been in the liquor business and proposed to manage the saloon himself in the house owned by his father. The premises are not within two hundred feet of school house or church, and the vicinity is patrolled by Constable McMahon when there is anything doing. The constable resides opposite the Castagna place. No objections.

Mystic Applicants.
James Foley of Mystic, who applied for license for the corner of Holmes and Church streets, testified that he resided in the house where the proposed saloon was to be located. He conducted a saloon in the same place five years ago and did not violate law. No remonstrance.

Charles Bartlow, applicant for license in Volney street, Mystic, testified that he had never been in the liquor business, but understood the law's requirements. No remonstrance.

Michael Shea, 24 Robinson street, Pawcatuck, applied for license in the house where he resides. He testified that there had been a saloon there before, but he had never engaged in the business. He had resided in Pawcatuck over thirty years and always obeyed the law. He said the street was occasionally patrolled by Officer Casey and Officer McMahon. No objections.

Near Unused School Property.
Andrew L. Shea, who applied for license at 43 Liberty street, gave testimony that the section was not strictly residential as it was in a residential section and within the two hundred feet prohibitive limit of school property. With Officer Casey he had measured the distance and was satisfied on that point. He said the general sentiment of residents of that section was in opposition to a license for that place.

Archibald L. McLaughlin, proprietor of the Hoxie house, Mystic, applied for license for that hotel, in answer to queries by his attorney, Richard P. Freeman of New London, testified that the Hoxie house was a well established hotel of long reputation and that William L. Main was owner of the property. Mr. Main approved of a license for the applicant. If granted license the bar would be located in the hotel proper and not in the annex. He had conducted hotels in no-liquor towns and had never engaged in the sale of intoxicating drinks.

Mr. Freeman stated that residents of Mystic were present, who would testify to the applicant's character and conduct of the Hoxie house, if the commissioners desired to have them. Commissioner Williams said he had personal knowledge of the circumstances and that such testimony he did not consider necessary in this case. The other commissioners concurred. No remonstrances appeared.

Inspected Pawcatuck Premises.
During the noon recess the commissioners viewed premises on the west side of West Broad street in Pawcatuck, for which application for license is made by Michael Keleher. At two o'clock the session was resumed in the town court room in Stonington.

Donah and Roma of Mystic, who applied for license in Washington street, testified that they proposed to conduct the business on their own account and would, if granted a license, conduct a straightforward business. Both are voters in the town of Stonington. No objection appeared.

Property Owners Protest.
John W. Ely, who applied for license in Washington street, Mystic, testified he was born in Mystic and always resided there. He said he knew there was no opposition to his license. He said he would run a saloon as it was in a residential section and within the two hundred feet prohibitive limit of school property. With Officer Casey he had measured the distance and was satisfied on that point. He said the general sentiment of residents of that section was in opposition to a license for that place.

Connecticut Field Trial Club to Begin
The Connecticut Field Trial club held its annual meeting Monday evening at the Prospect house, Hampton. The reports of the president and secretary were accepted as read. It was voted to keep a complete record of the proceedings of all meetings and field trials and to publish 500 copies of the report annually. Nine new members were admitted to the club. These officers were elected: President, Russell Perkins of Hartford; vice president, D. A. Goodwin of Newburyport, Mass.; second vice president, R. W. Huntington of Hartford; secretary and treasurer, C. H. Quinte of Hartford; board of governors, North Wallace of Farmington, L. R. Libby of Hartford, Henry L. Wade of Waterbury, F. M. Chapin of Plainfield, and W. E. Jackson of New Britain; chairman of auditing committee, Henry L. Wade; judge of field trials, F. C. Bradley of Fair Haven.

The club this season has entries as follows: 15 in membership, 16 in Derby, 17 in all ages.

The first start today (Tuesday) in the order named. A bench show will be held in connection with the trials, and will last throughout the day. This is a new feature of the club this year.

Worse Than Death.
In sentencing a brute to life imprisonment for murder, Judge Marcus Kavanagh of Chicago delivered an extraordinary address to the prisoner explaining why a sentence of death had not been given to him. Said his honor:

"The instinctive, unreasoning horror of mankind regards death as a severe punishment. This idea is not correct. You are now to receive a sterner punishment. Your victim died but once; you will die a hundred times. You will suffer more the day you put on your prison clothes than she did in her death. After that there will be only the hopeless, painful years, from day to day, from month to month, stretching out forever and in agony. In four or five years the eternal solitude and silence will be upon you. You can feel like an iron weight. You hear that street car bell ringing in the street as it passes now. You will remember it in after years as the most exquisite music. It will mean hurrying crowds that go where they like and do as they please; it will mean the greatest of all pleasures—freedom. You can only dream of it by day and by night, and your dream will be torture unbearable."

Lord Chief Justice Jeffreys of England, with shrewd glances, was accustomed to address prisoners in that prison, but Jeffreys was not a brute himself and took exquisite pleasure in inflicting pain on others, especially the men he hated. Judge Kavanagh heard the present remarks with astonishment. In uttering the language quoted he was inspired by horror of the atrocious crime which the prisoner had committed. Yet it may be doubted whether a judge should deliberately emphasize the terrors of prison confinement in order to make the culprit suffer as much agony as possible in anticipation of the experience.

Civilization and Matrimony.
In an article on "The Women of Tomorrow" in Everybody's, we read that the chances of marrying diminish as civilization increases. One reason for this is that the industrial and commercial conditions create an increasing demand for woman's services. Thus she can take care of herself, her thoughts are taken up with money making more than home making, and she is thus thrown out of the routine of society and love making.

And then, the standard of living is in the way. The social standards are getting higher (?) every decade, and no young people want to marry into a lower grade of living than they are accustomed to. They want rather to ascend through marriage than to descend. So they wait and wait, waiting for a windfall or till they save enough ahead, until the romantic period of love has passed, and the days of cool calculation have come, which, in an alarming degree, ends in celibacy.

The article referred to is full of contradictions, but it, there is one conclusion one thinks he sees through the mass of statistics and quoted authorities, it is this: That the time to marry is when the sex is at its height and the romance yet glowing; when calculation is pushed aside and John marries Mary for Mary and Mary marries John for John—Ohio State Journal.
